1. polystyrene egg paint

Start by painting the polystyrene egg with the Hobby Color handicraft paint in grey-brown. Allow it to dry completely before continuing. You can then paint the bunny's face with a fine brush. Use the colors white and black to give the bunny character.

2. Bunny ears made from tree bark

Cut out two bunny ears from the tree bark. Use a scalpel to make two slits in the top of the painted polystyrene egg . Carefully insert the ears. If necessary, fix them in place with a drop of hot glue.

3. Preparing the log

Drill a hole with a diameter of 8 mm in the middle of the log. Saw off a suitable piece of from round stick and glue it into the drilled hole.

4. Attach the bunny head

Apply a large dab of hot glue to the end of the round stick and press the bunny head onto it. Allow the glue to dry well so that everything is firmly in place.

5. Bow and hearts

Tie a pretty ribbon bow around the bunny's neck. Cut two hearts of different sizes from the tree bark and another from the ribbon. Glue them on top of each other and poke two holes through the largest heart with the tip of the scissors.

6. Attach the suspension

Thread a wire through the holes in the heart and attach it to the log using a screw hooks .

Addition-Tip: Weatherproof protection

If you want to place your bunny outdoors, we recommend coating it with protective varnish . This coating offers optimum weather protection and allows your bunny to withstand even the most uncomfortable weather conditions.
