Things to know about this idea

- Knitting strip used: 18 pins per side
- Width of the scarf: approx. 24 cm
- Approx. 70 rows can be knitted per ball of wool with this knitting strip (approx. 50 cm)

This is how knitting with the knitting strip works

1. First, tie the beginning of the wool to one of the end pins on the left or right.
2. In the first row, we prepare the cast-on. To do this, place the knitting wool around the first peg from right to left, then guide the wool to the opposite peg - again from right to left, i.e. you place the yarn in a loop around all pegs in the shape of an 8. Repeat the process until you have lots of "loops of 8" on the strip.
3. The stitches must now be knitted off. The next step is to wrap the cast-off row. To do this, repeat step 2 .
4. Now start knitting off the stitches. Start at the last wrapped peg and hook into the respective stitch on the outside of the knitting strip each time you knit: Using the knitting hook, pick up the bottom stitch (cast-on row) and pull it over the top stitch (cast-off row).
5. Wrap the next row of 8 loops and knit the stitches off. Repeat this process until you have reached the desired length.

If you want to use a new wool color, simply cut the thread of the currently active wool and knot the end of the thread with the new wool.

To finish the scarf, cast off all the stitches. It is best to use a crochet hook for this. Slip the first stitch and the opposite stitch with the crochet hook from and pull the first stitch over the opposite second stitch. Pull this new stitch back over the next opposite stitch. Repeat this process until you have bound off all the stitches.
